Two Dozen Murders Feature "Arsenic And Old Lace" Hit

Guignol To Open
Kesseling Play
On Monday Night

"Arsenic and Old Lace" which opens Monday at the Guignol theater is not a murder mystery or a psychological drama but an hilariously funny comedy in which the main characters commit a total of twenty-five murders.

The play was written by Joseph Kesselring and has had successful runs both on Broadway and on the road for the past two years. Its presentation in Lexington is unusual since the rights to legitimate plays are seldom secured when the play is still running in New York.

Murder A Hobby

The story concerns two "sweet" little old ladies who make a hobby of murdering homeless old gentlemen because they look lonesome and would be much better off dead. They are aided in their tasks by a slightly demented nephew, Teddy, who thinks that he is Teddy Roosevelt. Teddy buries each body in the locks of the Panama Canal, which he is digging in the basement of their Brooklyn home.

The little old ladies manage nicely until Jonathan, another nephew, appears on the scene. He, too, has murdered twelve men but not with the same generous motive as his aunts.

Wholesale Murder

The fun then starts, since Jonathan and his companion, Dr. Einstein, have brought their twelfth victim with them. Their anxiety to get rid of the body, the discovery that the aunts have also been doing a little wholesale murdering, not to mention the meddling of Mortimer, a third nephew, and his sweetheart, create most of the excitement of the play.

But as in all stories, the murderous Jonathan is captured and the little old ladies are taken to a health home. Not, however, before murdering their thirteenth victim just as the curtain closes the last act.

Calling All Corpses

The war has played a definite part in the casting and the setting of "Arsenic and Old Lace." Two minor male roles were changed to female roles and as yet, Guignol does not know whether they will be able to find enough men to have the twelve murdered men appear on the stage for the first curtain call.

The set, which was constructed for "Claudia," given in November, has been reconstructed from that of a modern suburban living room to an 1890 parlor.

Murdering Trio

The roles of Abbie and Martha Brewster, the little old ladies, will be played by Gladys M. Great-house, Wilmore, and Frances Bouton, Lexington. The role of Jonathan Brewster, the third of the murdering trio, will be enacted by Don Irvine, instructor of English.

Seven of the thirteen parts will be played by University students. Leonard Cohen, Paris, arts and sciences freshman, is playing the role of Teddy Brewster. The roles of Officer Brophy and Lt. Rooney will be played by William Hackaday, Jr., Lexington, arts and sciences sophomore.

Snyder Is Accomplish

James Snyder, Lebanon Junction, arts and sciences sophomore, will play the part of Dr. Einstein, another accomplice to the murders.

Eli Popa, Lexington, in the role of Mortimer Brewster, and Wanda Austin, Miami, Fla., arts and sciences senior, in the role of Elaine Harper, furnish the love interest.

Other members of the cast include: Mrs. Walter Williams as Mrs. Harper; Marjorie Freeman, Lexington, arts and sciences sophomore, as Mrs. Riley; Henry Hornsby, Lexington, as Mr. Gibbs; and Frances Rowland, Lexington, arts and sciences sophomore.

Frank Fowler is producer-director and Clarence Gelger is acting director for the production. Student tickets, plus fifty cents, will admit University students. Reservations may be made by calling 5412 any time after 10 a. m. daily.

W. R. Sutherland Will Lead Panel At Union Forum

Prof. W. R. Sutherland, assistant professor of English, will lead the panel discussion on "Education In The Post War World" sponsored by the Union forum committee at 4 p. m. Wednesday in the Music room of the Union building.

Other members of the panel will be Prof. Maurice F. Seay, head of the department of educational administration; Scott Reed, law student; and Mrs. Lorene Blankenship, home economics student.

Faculty advisor for the forum is Miss Chloe Gifford of the University Extension department. Student chairman of the meeting will be Pat Rimmer, commerce junior.

No Truth To Rumor Of Army Taking Houses

A news story recently appeared in a local paper concerning a survey that has been made to ascertain the number of soldiers who could be housed in the men's and women's dormitories and in the fraternity houses. This story has raised the question in the minds of many students as to whether the dormitories and fraternity houses are to be taken for quartering soldiers.

When asked about this rumor, Dr. T. T. Jones, dean of men, stated that the survey was conducted as a result of questionnaires that his office had been asked to fill out and return to army officials, and that he had no knowledge of whether or not the information was to be put to a practical use.

Dean Jones also stated that there was no truth to the rumor that the fraternity houses were to be taken by the army in March, although conditions are changing so rapidly that such an occurrence might be justified later on.

The survey showed that 350 soldiers could be placed in the fraternity houses, 400 in the men's dormitories, and 400 in the women's dormitories. If things came to the point that these facilities are utilized for housing soldiers, the problem of where to put the fraternity men would probably have disappeared largely through their being drafted into the army, the dean explained. The only major problem would be what to do with the women, but in the opinion of the dean this problem will probably never arise, because of the great number of soldiers that would have to be stationed here to make such a step necessary. Dean Jones stated that there is no real reason for immediate alarm, because the information is only being collected in order to be prepared for any unforeseen contingency.

"No College Will Close," Donovan Tells Trustees

Gift of $14,500
From Keeneland
Is Acknowledged

"Liberal and professional education will be continued on the campus, despite the demands of a wartime program, and no college will be closed," said President Herman L. Donovan, speaking before the Board of Trustees Tuesday.

The trustees, in quarterly session at the Lafayette hotel, accepted "with thanks" the gift of $14,500 by the Keeneland association, Lexington, for continued study of the prevention and treatment of diseases in horses and acknowledged "with gratitude" the gift, upon his death, of Winston Coleman's entire collection of Kentucky horses.

This bequest by the well-known Fayette county historian and University alumnus will include a number of rare and valuable manuscripts, books, pictures and relics assembled during extensive research.

To Study Diseases

The Keeneland gift, made to the animal-pathology department, was earmarked for study of prevention and care of diseases in horses "and other matters pertaining to animal husbandry."

The trustees met at the downtown location instead of on the University campus because of the hotel's accessibility to trailers and buses.

The trustees also accepted with thanks a grant of $20,000 from the General Education Board of New York City to be paid over a period of four years, beginning in July, 1943, for work in sociology. Acknowledgment was made officially by the board of the recent gift by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company of a portrait of Henry Clay.

"No Liquidation"

"It has taken over three quarters of a century for the University to attain its present status; slowly, through the years, at great cost and sacrifice," President Donovan explained, in his quarterly report to his trustees. "We do not propose to see it liquidated at this time. . . . Many courses will not be given due to changing conditions, but the program of the University will not be essentially altered. The University will move forward during the period of the war."

President Donovan pointed to the technical training now being given to Army enlisted men on the campus as "highly important in a world at war," but stated that "it is only a temporary objective of an institution of higher education," urging the trustees to "continue to think of the permanent values which a university renders to society."

The trustees approved a recommendation by President Donovan, concurred in by Dr. Paul P. Boyd, dean of the college of arts and sciences, to discontinue the department of social work for the duration of the war. This work will cease June 30.

President Donovan explained the work was important, but small attendance had made the cost-per-student prohibitive.

Enrollment Smaller
Student enrollment for the winter quarter to date was reported by President Donovan at 2,410, a loss of 402 students from the fall quarter, when 2,812 students were enrolled. He estimated that approximately another 1,000 men would leave the University by the close of the winter quarter (March 20), but predicted that by that time a large number of additional Army enlisted men would move onto the campus for specialized training.

The trustees approved a report by a committee of University faculty members which clarified the policy for operation of the University's health service to both faculty and students.

The regulation, as recommended by a committee of faculty members, specified that, hereafter, the University health service should be restricted to faculty staff members and students only and that members of the families of faculty members

Professor Lampert To Direct Philharmonic At Next Musicale

Beethoven Forms
Major Portion Of Program Set

The University Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Prof. Carl A. Lampert, head of the music department, will present the regular musicale at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Memorial Hall.

Beginning with eight or 10 players, 24 years ago, the Philharmonic Orchestra has grown to full symphonic size with an organization of nearly 65 players. Every type of instrument is represented.

Orchestra Smaller

Owing to the present exigencies, the orchestra has suffered some losses, but those who remain are presenting a full and varied program.

The five movements of the "Symphony No. 1 in C Major, Opus 21" by Beethoven will form the major portion of the program.

"Sevilla" by Albeniz and "Czech Rhapsody" by Weinberger comprise the second and third sections of the program.

The orchestra will also play a collection of Viennese Folk Music arranged by Komzak.

Waltz Concludes

In accordance with tradition, Professor Lampert and the orchestra will conclude the program with a Strauss waltz. The selection this year is the ever popular "Emperor Waltz, Opus 437."

Members of Phi Mu Alpha, men's music honorary, and Phi Beta, women's music honorary, will serve as ushers. They are Perry Adams, Paul Nolte, George Langstaff, Mabel Gummi, Ruth Pace and Anita Rosa

Registration Falls 394 This Quarter

The total registration of the University stood at 2,418 at press time yesterday. Of this total, 1,024 were women and 1,394 were men. This is a drop of 394 from the final enrollment of last quarter.

Yesterday was the last day on which a student could enter an organized class. Any student entering the University after the regular registration period is charged one dollar per day, the total not to exceed three dollars.

ODK-CWENS SING IS CANCELLED

No ODK-Cwens All Campus sing will be held this year. The annual sing, which was scheduled to be presented before Easter, has been cancelled, according to Robert Hillmeyer, president of Omicron Delta Kappa, senior men's honorary.

Because of the lack of interest, Hillmeyer stated, shown last year and because of the difficulties caused by the war, the organizations have decided to postpone the event for the duration of the war.

This is the second time the event has been postponed. It had been originally scheduled for the week before Christmas but was not held because the groups who were to participate felt that they had not had sufficient practice.

In last year's sing only three fraternities participated. This necessitated awarding a cup to each entry.

Open House Held For Servicemen

An open house for servicemen will be held at the Union building this Sunday afternoon from 3 to 6. Miss Rebecca Van Meter announced today. All women students are urged to attend.

Enlisted Reserves To Receive Orders To Report Soon

Calling of Enlisted Reserve Corps students to active duty under the Army's new specialized training program will begin at the end of the current quarter, according to instructions received here from the War department, Col. B. E. Brewer, head of the military science department, has announced.

Students will begin to receive orders shortly to report for active duty at designated times and places. No orders will be given to report on a date prior to two weeks after completion of the winter quarter, however, the announcement stated.

Upon completion of their basic training, the soldiers will be eligible for study at a designated college or university participating in the Army program.

Four Are Absent From SGA Meet

Members absent from Tuesday night's meeting of the Student Government association were Margaret Erskine, Alexander Hall, Martha Koppus, Joan Taylor Noland, and George Gilbert.

According to the present constitution, any legislator who misses three meetings during a quarter is automatically expelled from the legislature.

SOLDIERS' DANCE SET JANUARY 23

Women Invited
To Attend Event

An informal dance for the soldiers quartered at the Phoenix hotel and for any other visiting service men will be held from 8 to 11 p. m., Saturday, January 23 in the Bluegrass room of the Union building.

The dance, which will be informal, is the first in a series of all-soldier dances to be given this quarter under the direction of Mrs. Frank L. McVey. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCracken are sponsoring the dance.

All women students are invited to attend and assist in the entertainment of the soldiers. In addition to music for dancing, a floor show will be presented during the evening. It was announced.

Luella Brown, arts and sciences sophomore from Lexington, is chairman of the committee in charge of invitations. She will be assisted by Juanita Phillips, Wilma Salmon, Betty Berry, Betty Dew, Kathryn Pirkey, Lucy Thomas, and Charlotte Stidham.

Down With The Old, Up With The New, Woodsmen At Work

"Woodsmen, spare that tree" need not be the rallying cry of nature lovers when they see workers cutting down trees in some of the older plantings of the campus.

According to N. R. Elliott, professor of landscape architecture and field agent in horticulture, all the trees being removed are old, undesirable kinds and there are young trees already planted to replace them. Practically all those being cut down are so decayed that they have become hazardous to life and property. There is constant danger during a wind storm that a limb might fall and strike a person or an automobile.

Clearing away these badly decayed trees is a natural procedure that has to be done to all plantings, Professor Elliott stated. Trees do not live forever, but serve their period of usefulness and then should be removed, he said.

"The trees being cut are soft water maples, catalpas, badly decayed sugar maples, and a few black walnuts that are growing too close together. They will be replaced by better kinds such as pin oak, sweet gum, red oak, tulip poplar, red maple, and white ash, Elliott explained.

About 30 to 35 old trees are to be taken away, but there are 678 young ones already planted, he concluded.

Norwegians Carry On Fight By Subtle Digs At Germans

Library Receives Portrait Of Henry Clay As Present

By Norma Weatherspoon

It's all ill wind, you know, that doesn't stir up a bit of good for someone. Even the war, in a round about way, has added something of value to the University.

As a rather indirect result of the present conflict the University has received a portrait of Henry Clay, Kentucky statesman, as a gift from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company.

The life size portrait, now hanging in the second floor lobby of the University library, is a copy after a presumed original by Samuel P. B. Morse, inventor and painter. The actual painter of the copy is unknown although a name, which might be the name of the artist, appears on the back of the canvas.

To be chronologically accurate, the war began. And it brought changes in practically everything. Among those changes was the conversion of the Greenbrier hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., into a place for the housing of indigent alien enemies.

The hotel, famous American resort for more than 160 years, was owned and operated by the railway company.

In the President's room of the building was the portrait of Clay. After the hotel was closed, the railway company presented this painting to the University.

S. R. Johnston, special representative of the company, wrote to President Donovan, "With the closing of the Greenbrier after a career as a hotel property for more than 160 years it is the desire of the owners to keep alive the traditions of this famous place and I am instructed to present to you in behalf of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company the portrait of Henry Clay by Samuel Morse, which hung in the President's room in the Greenbrier hotel."

Dr. Donovan accepted the painting in behalf of the University and placed it in the library. "There the portrait will hang so long as this institution may stand to be viewed by thousands of students as they pass through the library," the president said. "It is indeed appropriate that this portrait of Henry Clay should be sent to his home town where he is still a great hero among our people."

Assembly Speaker Tells Of Passive Resistance Policy

Students and faculty members laughed heartily at the jokes told by Dr. Sigmund Skard, Norwegian writer and scholar, at convocation Wednesday, but to the Norwegians such joking is their way of carrying on a grim and relentless fight for survival.

"In a country where your home may be taken away from you by a German officer, and where the blankets are taken off your bed, it is necessary for individuals to fight a passive resistance or they will not be able to stand the punishment which they receive," said Dr. Skard to the largest convocation audience of the school year.

Germans Isolated

Speaking on the subject "Norway Still Fights," Skard told how the people of his country isolated the Germans and how effective this weapon is against invaders. "When a Nazi comes into a restaurant and sits down, all the people around him move away," he added.

"Once a German officer asked a young girl if he could have a certain chair but she did not answer him. 'Why don't you answer me?' he shouted. She explained by saying that he did not ask for Norway so why should he ask for the chair?"

Schools Are Barracks

Skard said that 10,000 German soldiers had taken over the schools and universities in Norway for barracks, and that they had bought shares of stock in most Norwegian industries and had paid for it with Norwegian money.

"Although the Germans have completely over-run my country, we still have a government located in London which is self-supporting, and also one of the largest and most modern merchant marines in the world. We have an army in Scotland and our ships sail the seven seas. America and Norway will fight together with determined purposes until enemy is crushed," said the writer and scholar.

Dr. Skard also spoke at a dinner (Continued on Page Three)

The Time To Think Has Come

Perhaps the students of the University have some deeprooted prejudices against thinking deeply about certain matters on the campus that concern them vitally. This is unfortunate, to say the least.

It is hard to say that they are not thinking deeply, but it is evident that where some situations are concerned they prefer to leave it for "George" to do. Often they need a prod to get them started on the way of mental and physical exertion.

We never said that The Kernel was the official prodder of the campus, it might more aptly be termed the official plodder, coming out every Tuesday and Friday with the regularity of clockwork.

But today, it is taking over the work of prodding to the extent of three columns of type. It might be well that those students who have opened this page to peruse the newest happen-

For your information, this was not written in the sudden rage of an imagined slight. It was compiled after much study through the former issues of the paper. It was written with the idea of presenting a problem to the student body, and as such, was not dashed off in the ten minutes between classes or the last possible minute before the deadline.

The article was written with the full consent, approval, and backing of the editor of this paper, and any policies that may be set forth in this writing may be considered as the policy of The Kernel itself.

The Kernel columns will be open to anyone who wishes to present a viewpoint on the matter, providing always for the editing of articles too long for the space allotted.

UK Coeds Are Not Loafing

Until Johnny comes marching home and the lights go on again U. K. coeds aren't loafing on the job. They're busy hacking up their men "over there" and "down under."

It isn't easy to give up one of those "nights out" allowed by the dormitories or come away from a winning hand of bridge to go down to the Red Cross center and fold bandages. But, it's the thing to do now!

Contrary to general opinion, U. K. women are "all out" for the war effort. Home front activities include knitting of Red Cross sweaters, scarfs, socks, and helmets. Nurses' Aid training, courses in home nursing taught by the Red Cross, folding of surgical dressings, and entertainment of service men stationed in Lexington and in training on the campus. However, the fact that sorority women and Independents worked side by side in the scrap metal drive has been mentioned before.

After a few hours of tedious work they find themselves discussing it in their sleep. It's "knit one, purl two" or "in case of a severed artery, what?" Nurse's Aid trainees practice on their roommates and speak in terms of long, complicated words found in a medical dictionary.

Democracies And Military Attitudes

THE FREE LANCE—by Bob Warth

The militarist will tell you that wars are necessary if a nation wishes to survive in a world where brutal power is the final arbiter of disputes. The pacifist will tell you that war never solves anything. Each claims to be the "realist" while accusing the other of "warmongering" or "wishful thinking."

The democracies of the world, or at least the great mass of citizens who are affectionately or sneeringly dubbed the "common people" (depending upon who is doing the dubbing), like to think of themselves as somewhat pacifistic in time of peace; certainly the democracies cannot be accused of bristling with armaments when war does break out.

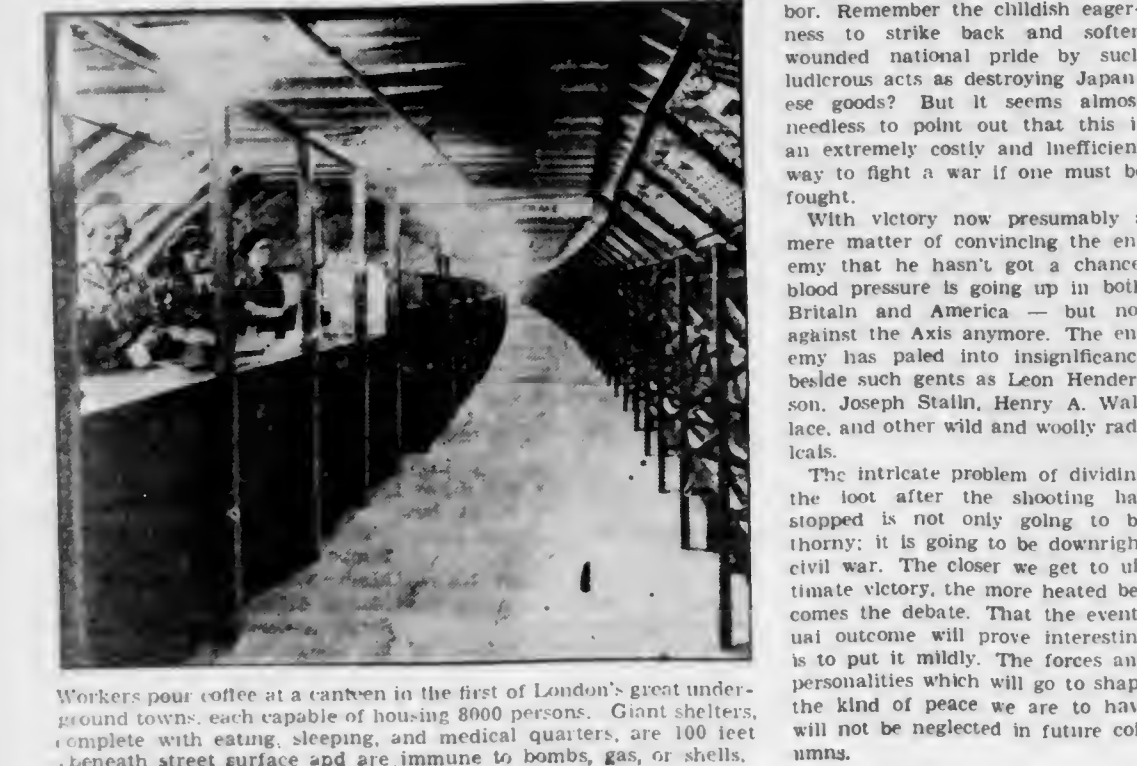

Monarchies were the villains. The authoritarian countries (monarchies were the villains before the present epidemic of dictatorships) are on the contrary commonly assumed to be nations of saber-rattling chauvinists, seduced by their ambitious leaders from following the paths of righteousness.

Now all of this may be quite true. We would be one of the last to contradict the theory in view of the events leading up to World War II. The fact remains, however, that the eternal question of what is the "right" strategy to pursue in peacetime becomes academic once war is no longer a possibility but an actuality.

Approximately 350 Princeton students have been giving up their Sundays to the task of keeping supplies moving through the Belle Mead Quartermaster depot, ten miles from the University. "Fool! Haven't you heard that all public inscriptions must be written first in German and then in Czech?"

We Take Over The Hairbrush

The Kernel is taking a beating. And someone is hitting below the belt.

For over four months now the dear old Kernel has been turned across the knees of the president of the Student Government association and has submitted placidly and without a murmur to a thorough and sound spanking. But now the hairbrush has struck once too often.

The final blow came at Tuesday's meeting of the legislature when Jim Collier stated, "The student body takes little interest in the affairs of SGA because it is ignorant of its functions and purposes. This is entirely the fault of The Kernel."

We do not think that this is the opinion of the entire legislature. The repeated slurs, slurs, remarks, insinuations, accusations, and plain insults have all come from the president.

Up to the present we have kept our peace with that official, feeling that the preservation of good will and cooperation between the Student Government and The Kernel was worth the digestion of his caustic remarks.

However, the situation has become increasingly unbearable. Not only has Mr. Collier dealt out slurs and reflections on The Kernel, its policies and management, but he has even repeatedly attempted censorship of articles concerning "his" Student Government. And he plainly states that he is a stout supporter of "down-to-earth democracy."

This editorial has not been written as a defense of this paper in a petty argument. It is to clear up an awkward situation and to prove to Mr. Collier, to the student legislature, and to the entire student body that The Kernel is and always has been an ardent hacker, a willing ally, and a fully cooperative supporter of the Student Government association.

To cite recent instances of Kernel boosting of SGA, regular reporters have covered every called or regular meeting of the group, and in almost every case the news story of the meeting has appeared prominently on the front page of The Kernel. An honest and sincere effort has been made to give accurate, complete, and vivid reports of these meetings.

Mr. Collier will remember that The Kernel recently saved him considerable embarrassment in his position as chief executive, if not actual trouble, by checking with University officials certain allegations forming the basis of a lengthy discussion in a legislative session. We believe, too, that SGA gained by the fact that its student press and its executives acted on the rules of successful, ethical journalism.

Is this not Kernel support of the SGA?

Officials of the Student Government have come into our offices with requests that we write special feature articles explaining different phases of its work. Not once have they been refused, despite space and time limitations.

We mentioned Mr. Collier's censorship of Kernel articles. More about that. He has repeatedly cut out of completed articles any references to proceedings of the SGA which he considered unnecessary for the reading of the general student body. He went over The Kernel editor's head and asked the director of student publications to permit him to read and censor all material concerning the SGA on the grounds that The Kernel tended to "sensationalize" SGA news in order to make more readable stories. Democracy, Mr. Collier? Incidentally, he was referred to the editor for adjustment of his grievances.

Why don't you read up on the history of SGA, Mr. Collier, and find out who has been the truest supporter of the organization? And if you are at a loss for source material go to the bound files of the student newspaper.

For your edification, sir, there has never been a Kernel editor who has not taken an active interest in the SGA since its very beginning.

Louis T. Iglehart, Kernel editor for two years, was chairman of the Committee of Reorganization of Student Government, which drew up the plans for the SGA and drafted its first constitution.

Jim Caldwell, who succeeded Iglehart as editor, was a member of the first legislature, formed immediately after the University Senate accepted the plan for the SGA. It was he who first introduced the bill for abolishing Hell Week on the campus.

Bob Ammons, successor to Caldwell as editor, carried on the light against Hell Week. He was also a member of the first legislature and served as a representative for three years. He conceived the idea of a Student War Fund, introduced the bill for its creation, and urged its support in his editorial columns.

He backed Student Government projects even when this support brought him considerable embarrassment and even disagreement with the University administration. His editorial judgment was questioned because he wrote an editorial protesting the Faculty's ruling on SGA amendments and because he published in full the preliminary report of the SGA welfare committee's investigation of the residence halls before that report was submitted to the Faculty.

The present editor has endeavored to give complete cooperation and to give considerable publicity to the SGA. She advocated support of the Student War Fund, and the entire proceeds of The Kernel-sponsored scrap drive were donated to this fund.

Look at the files, Mr. Collier, and consider the role that The Kernel played in the founding of the Student Government association.

Prior to the actual appointment of a committee to suggest improvements in student government at the University, The Kernel had been advocating such a move.

Regular reports outlining the suggestions of the committee appeared in the paper. At this time The Kernel conducted a survey asking, "Would you support an intelligent move for student government on this campus?" This was done in an effort to keep student interest in the project alive.

On April 28, 1939, the plan of the new constitution was printed in full in The Kernel. Streamers and front page stories plugged the mass meeting which the committee had arranged in order to explain the plan to the students. The publication stated, "Ever since the reorganization committee was appointed, and even before, The Kernel has given examples and illustrations of the deficiencies of the present form of government and has emphasized the need for reorganization."

The Kernel did not, like many students, forget the project after the foundations were laid. But immediately after the ratification of the constitution in September, 1939, the publication swung into a publicity campaign designed to arouse interest in and to create enthusiasm about the election of the first legislative body.

An editorial at that time said, "The Kernel is announcing here and now that it intends to print the platforms of SGA candidates and call attention to any flagrantly 'loose' planks in same. It also intends to keep the platform of the victor before the public throughout the year."

During every election campaign since then The Kernel has devoted an entire page to the publication of the complete platforms of all candidates. Election rules, qualifications for candidates, pictures of candidates, lists of polling places, and other pertinent material have been given prominent positions in the paper.

In addition, editorials have regularly appeared urging students to vote and to take an active interest in the elections. The Kernel has consistently remained non-partisan because it felt that such a policy would give it greater scope in reporting fairly the proceedings of the elections.

All bills which the SGA has endeavored to pass have received the backing of The Kernel. The full texts of such bills have always been printed and explanatory articles have been run to help students understand their purpose and content.

Editorial comment has not only been aimed toward arousing student interest but has also endeavored to keep alive interest and accomplishment within the legislature itself. A statement made in December, 1939, by one of the members of the first legislature showed that in his opinion these editorial prods "helped awaken the longest stride of activities" since the legislature was created.

Seven months after the first legislature took office, The Kernel conducted an extensive survey among students asking their opinion about the success of SGA. Through this survey both the flaws and the accomplishments of the group were revealed.

Reports of special SGA committees have always been given ample space as well as reports of regular sessions. The SGA reporter has always been an important member of The Kernel staff. We have not sent incompetent persons to report the activities of what we considered the most important student organization on the campus.

The foregoing facts make us believe that The Kernel has supported the SGA. Do they convince you, Mr. Collier?

We realize that the SGA cannot function properly or even exist without student support. We believe that student support cannot be maintained unless The Kernel, which is a powerful organization on the campus despite any opinions to the contrary, solicits it. The Kernel is necessary to the Student Government association.

On the other hand, SGA support is necessary to The Kernel.

The present Kernel staff wishes to continue the smooth cooperation, the hand-in-glove working, of the student newspaper and the student government. We will do our part toward maintaining the chief ally of the SGA. We think that the SGA is the finest student organization at the University. We pledge it our whole-hearted support.

Mr. Collier, will you give us a similar pledge? Will you do as much as common courtesy demands? Will you treat Kernel reporters with at least a minimum of respect? Will you meet us halfway?

M. N. W. and B. J. P.

Co-ed Corner . . .

By Scotty McCulloch

Every other new column to begin in this classic Kernel of ours, has started with the usual introductions and "how-do-you-do's," but just to make the game interesting and to eliminate extra words we are dispensing with all that and just leaving the formalities to your open minds. After all, this is war and space is valuable!!!

Since fashions cannot hope to contest the WAAC's or vie with the WAVES in simplicity, the market of this spring's showing is sparse and greatly reduced in comparison with former years, but with all the handicap, the designers and producers have brought forth a few items that make your mouth water and take the strain off your pocket-book.

By far one of the most outstanding topics of college conversation, the new gray wool flannel-cotton mixture that emerges from the fliters as a coat, makes our headline for several weeks to come. Cut to give the maximum of fullness, with the rear vent, this simple tailored jobby leaves one with nothing to wish for. Three buttoned, straight lined, and with the revived Chesterfield collar, every principle of good looks and smartness is found in this model. Slacks to match may be purchased with it.

B. Wragge has designed another stand-by that looks like money and costs very little. Made in one piece, this dress looks like two. It has a canary yellow blouse, shirred on the shoulders, with a cardigan neckline. The skirt is leaf green, with unpressed pleats, eliminating both pressing worries and trouble with your soldier's color scheme. It's simply super walking beside any Sgt. John Doe. By the way, the marine uniform is also a green!

"Shoes to fit the times and the occasion," would be our name for the newest luggage tan calfskin pumps. The heel is high and the twisted leather bow on the toe makes for frivolity and a maximum of comfort. An ideal touch is the heel made from unscrutable, won't-scar material, which guarantees greater wear, and in these days when the shoe problem is getting serious, we need shoes that wear well. Snatches At Random: The new Lucien Lelong "Stroco" which is the nearest scent to "Shalimar" yet on the market, black satin gloves for evening worn with a black satin Mandarin coat, and then from the sublime satin to the ridiculous heavy wools, the boys plaid shirts worn with solid color skirts, and finally, your brother's cast-off sport coat whittled down to your size and reaching to within a few inches of your skirt.

Enough for now. Think about what you didn't get for Xmas and hustle down town and buy it.

UK Had Swimming Pool In Women's Gym Cellar

By Robert Pride

You've heard the hackneyed phrase "Them were the good old days" applied to the rah rah college era of raccoon coats, peg top trousers, and rip roaring hell weeks. Well they also had something else here which we don't have now, namely a swimming pool.

A pool was built some fifty years ago in the basement of the women's gymnasium for the purpose of instructing all women students in the art of swimming.

According to Mrs. Robert Stout, professor of physical education, the pool was about 30 feet long and 15 feet wide. Upon the walls around the pool were painted summer scenes which kept the girls in the mood.

The pool was small, so many women were instructed in the fundamentals of swimming through dry land drill in the gymnasium. When proficient in dry-land swimming, small groups of women were permitted to enter the pool where the principal strokes were practiced by means of wide leather belts fastened around the pupil's waist, and a series of rings and pulleys which permitted the student to traverse the length of the pool. According to Mrs. Stout, this is one of the best methods of learning to swim. It stresses correct form and breathing and insures good posture.

Gymnastic tournaments have been held in the women's gym and pool in which persons from all over the state participated. Such events often attracted the governor of the state and other prominent persons. Outsiders who wished to learn to swim during the summer were given 6 complete lessons for ten dollars.

At present, freshmen girls who cannot swim (usually about 25 or 30 in each freshman class) must learn to do so during their physical education curriculum. Since the discontinuance of the pool, the University has used the YWCA facilities.

What has happened to the beautiful pool now? It has been filled in and is a part of the basement floor of the women's gymnasium.

Note, You Refs

An important meeting of intramural basketball officials will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in the intramural office in the gym annex. Arthur T. Guillet, director, has announced.

Air Reservists May Be Deferred

A student who is a member of the Air Corps enlisted reserve will be called to active duty at the discretion of the Chief of the Army Air Corps, and at such time as he can be assigned to training, the military department has announced.

In this way he is considered separate from the other reserves, and may be allowed to remain in school for several more quarters.

KERNEL SPORTS

The Sporting Way

By BAXTER MELTON

The pigskin parade is as dead as ye olde door nail as Baron Adolph Rupp and his basketballers approach the half-way mark of their cage season, but the controversy still reigns over whether Kentucky will have a football team next year.

One guess is as good as another, say the smart guys, who hold forthcoming developments to be the deciding issue. Despite the dim outlook, University officials still hope for a grid squad, come next autumn.

"Yep, if we still have 11 men next fall, we'll have a football team," asserts Ab Kirwan, head grid mentor. "Anything can happen between now and then, but barring unforeseen troubles, we will have a squad."

Shively Also Hopes

His determination to keep Kentucky in the pigskin picture is backed by Bennie Shively, athletic director and line coach. Like Kirwan, Shively doesn't absolutely guarantee an eleven, but hopes that conditions will allow it.

Southeastern Conference schools were given the green light at a recent meeting in Knoxville, where loop officials ruled that members should continue the sport, if at all possible. The conference big-wigs realized, of course, that football can not be maintained on its former plane, but feel that some degree of inter-collegiate competition should be had.

Many colleges all over the country have already given up the cleat-and-moleskin game because of player shortages and other reasons. Locally, Transylvania college, which introduced the sport to the South in 1879, discontinued football after 62 years in the game.

Transy Coach Looks Ahead

Thus, some sort of an authority on the subject should be Algie Reece, former Transy assistant coach and now a physical education instructor at the University. Reece believes that football will be carried on at UK next year, though probably not in the way which 'Cat fans have been accustomed. The ex-Pioneer mentor looks for squads to be smaller and players to be less seasoned.

Another campus figure whose word should carry some weight in such discussions is S. A. Boles, now ticket manager, but former grid coach. "Daddy" piloted the Wildcats during the last World War, and sees no reason why UK can't keep on during this one.

"Sure, we had our headaches, what with few players, this that, and the other, but still, we managed to keep our heads above water. What's more important, we didn't even have scholarships to offer as inducements then," smiled the affable Boles, who also serves as golf coach.

Freshmen Played In 1917

Records of the 1917 season show three wins, five losses and one tie, but this can be partly explained by six freshmen being on the first eleven. Other performers came from boys rejected by draft boards and miscellaneous youths left on the campus.

"Sometimes," said Daddy, "we'd have no more than 12 boys on hand for Monday afternoon practice. We didn't have trainers to care for the boys if they were injured, so they wouldn't risk early-week rehearsals off-times."

During the 1918 campaign only three starts were made, because of the flu epidemic and restrictions put into effect by health boards. Kentucky teams weren't allowed to leave Lexington many times for games, crowds were banned, and athletic contests in general were discouraged. The Wildcats managed to defeat Indiana and Georgetown while losing to Vanderbilt.

despite the difficulties encountered in so doing. Coach Boles himself left before the season even got under way. He went to Princeton University to report to the bayonet corps, had just completed his training when the Armistice was signed.

May Be A Military Team
So on what happens between now and school-time next fall rests the future of Kentucky football. Possibly a team may be drafted from military students on the campus, should UK have been taken over by the government by then.

Whatever occurs, in the meantime, folks may look forward to University participation in grid games. The athletic staff realizes its importance and hopes to keep things going, if at all possible. Not only does the spirit of competition benefit the players, but the physical fitness, fair play, and other characteristics obtained can be used throughout life. Especially are good, sound men needed during the emergency, when an army's success or failure often rests on its physical condition.

Many institutions have placed a great emphasis on intramural sports, after having abandoned the grid game. The University might possibly stress intramural competition, but this writer feels that nothing will ever take the place of football.

So until this fall's cool breezes suggest the coming of another moleskin season, we're hoping with UK's coaches that the King of College Sports keeps its rightful place here at the University.

Wildcat Cagers Set To Maul Vols In Annual Court Rivalry

Big Blue Journeys To Southern City To Meet Rivals

By Baxter Melton
Kernel Sports Editor

Kentucky and Tennessee renew their ancient court rivalry in Knoxville Saturday night, when Coach Adolph Rupp sends his "pore li'l mountain boys" against the league-leading Vols of Coach Johnny Maurer.

The Vol-Wildcat clashes are annually considered as previews of things to come when tourney time rolls around, so the South's net fandom is fastening its eyes on the attraction. Last week saw the Tennesseans hand 'Bama its first loss, while the Vol success was its sixth in eight tries. Kentucky holds a not-so-impressive record of four victories and two defeats. Despite this, however, the teams are held even choices, since previous showings mean nothing when the 'Cats and Mauremen get together.

Anything Can Happen
Take Coach Adolph Rupp. Kentucky's colorful coach, for example. The Baron is usually very talkative before a game, but assumes a quiet demeanor when mention is made of the melee with Tennessee. "It's just one of those things when anything can happen, and usually does," the Man in the Brown Suit will tell you between puffs on his cigar.

Possibly the Baron was thinking of those Vol hecklers when he offered this not-so-optimistic view. Almost as famous as the contests themselves is the ribbing Coach Rupp gets from a gallery of Tennessee enthusiasts, who have become quite professional in jibing the 'Cat mentor. Anyway, Kentucky's skipper knows trouble is brewing across the border, and has been drilling his charges long and hard this week in prepping for the tilt.

Regulars To Start

Coach Rupp plans to start the same quintet that has opened other games this season, but has several subs to send in when the regulars begin to tire. Milt Tlico, who tallied 15 points against Xavier and 17 against Fort Knox, and Muff Davis, a dependable soph, will get the call at forwards. Co-captain Mel Brewer will start at center, and Co-captain Marvin Akers and Kenny Rollins will get the nod at guards.

Twelve players were included in the entourage that left here at 7:30 this morning for the game site. Contests with Georgia and Georgia Tech are carded before the return trip. Squad members making the trek in addition to the starters were Ace Parker, Bill Hamm, Carl Althaus, Bill Barlow, Ed Landers, Wil-

SIGNAL CAGERS, MOREHEAD PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Though the Wildcats are performing in Knoxville Saturday night, local net fans won't have to forego a cage dish this weekend. The Avon Signal Depot basketballers are scheduled to play host to Morehead State Teachers in Alumni gym Saturday night in a game that promises to be close.

Of special interest to UK followers is the fact that Garland Lewis, ex-'Cat star, is coaching the trainees. Lewis, who played forward for Baron Adolph Rupp from 1933-1936, has developed a better-than-average quintet from the list of candidates that reported to him some weeks ago.

The Avon record now reads three wins and three losses, but the radio boys are improving with each start, according to their mentor. They'll need all of this in Saturday's clash.

bur Schu and Paul Noel. Coach Rupp, Paul McBrayer, his assistant, and Bobby Landrum, manager, also made the jaunt.

"Wildcat" Name For Teams Dates Back To Scrap In 1909

By Jim Abell

Have you ever wondered why our athletes were called "Wildcats"?

The origin of that title dates back to 1909 when someone said they fought the University of Illinois like wildcats. This name originated in the same manner for six other well known institutions, including the University of Arizona and North-Western.

The Wildcats of Abilene Christian College in Texas obtained their name as a comparison to the real 'cats found in West Texas.

In 1916, the students of Culver-Stockett College dubbed their athletes Wildcats, because they were "small and scrappy."

The South Dakota State School of Mines created their title from the call letters of their college broadcasting station which were WCAT.

News writers in 1923 gave the name to the team of the State Teachers College of Chico, Calif. because bob-cats are frequently found there.

A wildcat is the mascot of the University of New Hampshire and, for its "fighting qualities, particularly when cornered," their team was named the same.

The Villanova college performers have had their name since 1936 when the senior class sponsored a contest for a suitable name, which became Wildcats.

Several other schools use the title, but probably for less reasons than those cited.

The University of Kentucky was probably one of the first of the major institutions to adopt the nickname.

however, since Morehead has won all of its five games so far.

All of the Signal Corps starters have had collegiate experience, two of them having played on Kentucky junior-college teams. Paul Nelkirk, forward, was a member of the Lindsey-Wilson five, and Bob Hilton, guard, performed with Ashland junior college. Two other members, Marshall Pelros, forward, and Bob Holmer, center, played basketball at Depauw in Chicago. The other regular, Lawrence Coyte, guard, made the frosh quint last year at Duke.

Admission to the game, which will be preceded by a preliminary at 7 o'clock, will be 40 cents, general admission, B.M.

David Cole, Campbellville; Lt. Walter T. Conner, Lexington; Lt. William M. Tuney, Lexington; and Lt. William M. Whitnel, Jr., Fulton.

Lieutenant Cole and Lieutenant Tuney were graduated from a new field, the Blackland two-engine at Waco, Texas. Lieutenant Conner and Lieutenant Whitnel received their wings at the twin-engine advanced schools at Brooks Field and Ellington Field, respectively.

IN THE ARMY

they say:

"HAY BURNERS" for cavalry horses

"JUGHEAD" for the Army mule

"CHICKENS" for the eagle insignia of a colonel

"CAMEL" for the Army man's favorite cigarette

The "Zone" where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you...and how it affects your throat. For your taste and throat are individual to you. Based on the experience of millions of smokers, we believe Camels will suit your "T-ZONE" to a "T."

I'LL TAKE CAMELS ANY TIME! THEY'RE THE REAL THING — PLENTY FLAVORFUL AND MILD!

FIRST IN THE SERVICE
